WOMAN

Summer lovin' and leisure wear, more urban apparel and romantic appeal: Sisley's SS22 is designed with a focus on sustainability and natural yarns.

We start with a luminous, summery look as refreshing as the sea. For SS22 Sisley has created a wardrobe of fluid, A-line dresses with geometric patterns inspired by decorations created by some of the great names in Italian Fifties design - first and foremost, Gio Ponti - where the gleam of satin evokes the glossy effect of ceramics.

Symphonies in blue, but "blue jeans" this time, with Sisley's sustainable denim. "Used" jeans are shredded and the fibres respun and blended with eco-sustainable viscose to create new pieces with a mix and match of nuances and sheen. Brand new jeans, on the other hand, are also eco-friendly, made in accordance with the latest standards of water consumption. Another reason to love the slightly cropped style featuring pleats, a cinched waist and relaxed fit around the hips.

The luxury version sweatshirt is structured with an oversize fit, almost as voluminous as a shirt. Available in cady and stretch jersey, this versatile piece pairs equally well with casual or more sophisticated looks. Colours are organic, from nude to camel, ideal to combine with honey or cognac colour faux leather pieces.

For fans of a more romantic style, Sisley presents its "Rive Gauche forever" allure. The chain belt and "classic" denim, to be worn with few accessories. Essential cult pieces are the miniskirt, lace shirt, fringed waistcoat, and striped pullover with sparkles. Et voila! The pyjama suit trend continues, with fluid cuts and a comfortable fit. The dressing gown jacket can be worn cinched at the waist or open, over high-waisted palazzo pants. Summer shorts for the first days of vacation are flirty and comfortable: loose Bermudas, jackets with three-quarter sleeves and dropped shoulders to wear together or paired with cotton minidresses with a summer vibe.

Urban minidresses and caftans, with decorative appliqués or tassels, and crochet tunic dresses are a must have, or poplin or muslin maxi dresses, with petal hems and bare back, for a graceful feminine look. For fans of 90s minimalism, the satin slip dress, to style with flat sandals and a mini-bag is another must. For lovers of organic yarns, linen features on flared blouses, maxi-shirts, dresses and pleated Bermuda shorts. Relaxed and textured, colours are olive, antique pink and chalk white with a fresh appeal and simple 'Made in Italy' elegance.

MAN

Spring-Summer for the Sisley man means well-cut pieces in natural or technical materials. We're talking about innate elegance, without tears, patches, vivid colors or a mix of styles. The use of interlock, crease-resistant, light and bi-stretch technical fabrics or neoprene, works perfectly on sweatshirts, sailing-style field jackets, striped sweaters and yarn-dyed hoodies.

It is a modern identity well suited to lovers of Sisley, a brand that - not coincidentally - has always been devoted to freedom.

A freedom which also finds expression in the rainproof parka, inspired by an old Sisley advertising campaign. Reinterpreting an iconic piece of the brand's old school wardrobe for today's man, the Sisley style office has given it a modern twist: in organic cotton twill with an easy fit, it represents relaxed elegance 3.0. The same mood for city jackets, to be worn for work or leisure time, in line with those sartorial diktats that require a certain "decorum" even when it's hot. Unlined, deconstructed, in linen or cotton blends, in navy blue, eggshell, pinstripe and pearl grey, these very light jackets can be worn either coordinated with matching pants or mixed with blue jeans.

In terms of outerwear, the military field jacket in cotton drill or chambray denim with utility pocket is the season's must-have. Sisley's men's fashion also focuses on linen, a natural, breathable fibre synonymous with a summer vibe: the shirts with small collars, printed or in shades of dove-grey or light blue, are particularly attractive. Indispensable for an easy-going attitude are bowling shirts, with jungle prints or shacket (half jacket/half shirt) style. Finally, classic polo shirts in piqué or structured jersey give a touch of casual smartness. Pair them with chinos or linen Bermuda shorts, with a simple leather belt. It doesn't take much, it's Sisley.
